CONNECTIVISM: A LEARNING THEORY FOR THE DIGITAL AGE

Principles of Connectivism:

- Learning and knowledge rests in diversity of opinions.
- Learning is a process of connecting specialized nodes or information sources.
- Learning may reside in non-human appliances.
- Capacity to know more is more critical than what is currently known.
- Nurturing and maintaining connections is needed to facilitate continual learning.
- Ability to see connections between fields, ideas, and concepts is a core skill.
- Currency (accurate, up-to-date knowledge) is the intent of all connectivist learning activities.
- Decision-making is itself a learning process. Choosing what to learn and the meaning of incoming information is seen through the lens of a shifting reality. While there is a right answer now, it may be wrong tomorrow due to alterations in the information climate affecting the decision.”

LIFELONG LEARNING, PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT, & COALITION BUILDING

- The self-directed goals of the professional and the mobile devices of today facilitate our connecting with each other.

- PLEs/websites individual or organizational are electronic repositories and resources to “connect” educational and academic goals with personal and professional goals and experiences both internally and with “external knowledge networks”. Webinars, Blogs, Facebook pages, Websites, conferences ...

- Coalitions must become digitally based to connect members when time and space in coming together presents a barrier, to send announcements, survey members, calls to action...
